Continuing Education Workshop

Purpose:

Changes in memory and cognition beyond normal aging, coupled with hearing and/or vision loss and decreased activity can have a significant impact on a person's quality of life. When effective strategies are provided for communication and memory challenges, along with activity modification, there are opportunities for enhancing the daily interactions of the older adult with their family, friends, care partners, community organization and healthcare professionals.

Participants will learn the signs of physical and mental changes, the importance of life enhancement and strategies to enhance and modify communication with older adults.
